SECTION E: Comprehension (5 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Choose the correct answer and shade its number on the OAS provided.

The word 'fossils' refers to the remains of plants or animals that lived a very long time ago. A fossil may take the shape and structure of the plant or animal and form an impression on stones. Although fossils originated from both plants and animals, people seem to be more fascinated by fossils of animals rather than that of plants, particularly those of dinosaurs.

The largest dinosaurs which ever lived were probably the sauropods. What exactly is a sauropod? 'Sauropod' is a term used to describe gigantic, four-legged, dinosaurs with bulky bodies, long necks and tails, and tiny heads with small brains. Sauropods like the Brachiosaurus, weighed over 45 000kg! That is astounding information when humans compare themselves to dinosaurs. A young boy who is about 10 years old weighs only 30kg! Amazingly, even though sauropods were the largest dinosaurs ever lived, they were very gentle and ate only plants, compared to the smaller but fiercer tyrannosaurs which were meat-eaters.

'Tyrannosaur' means 'tyrant lizard'. They, on the other hand, had large, heavy heads, powerful legs and tiny limbs. They were ferocious and would tear at their prey with their numerous sharp teeth. However, compared to the sauropods, they only weighed about 7 200kg. A well-known carnivorous dinosaur is the T-Rex.

One may wonder at the size of these dinosaurs. There are many theories as to why these dinosaurs were huge. One theory is that the prehistoric world was full of vegetation. Just like humans in an all-day dessert buffet, dinosaurs may have evolved to giant sizes simply because there was too much food to eat. Another theory is that dinosaurs needed to be of that size for self-defence; a jumbo-sized herbivore would have to protect itself from attacks by predators.

Whatever the reason may be, humans still find dinosaurs fascinating. Even though they are extinct, we can still gather new information about them from the many fossils that have been discovered in recent years.

- 18 Fossils are _____
- (1) stones
 - (2) humans
 - (3) remains of dinosaurs
 - (4) remains of plants and animals embedded in rocks
- 19 _____ was the biggest type of dinosaur which ever lived.
- (1) T-Rex
 - (2) Sauropod
 - (3) Tyrannosaur
 - (4) Brachiosaurus
- 20 The weight of a tyrannosaur is about _____
- (1) 10kg
 - (2) 30kg
 - (3) 7 200kg
 - (4) 45 000kg
- 21 According to the passage, the reason why dinosaurs were big could be because _____
- (1) they were once alive
 - (2) they had changed to stone
 - (3) they had too much food to eat
 - (4) they needed to protect themselves from preys
- 22 A suitable title for the passage could be _____
- (1) Types of Dinosaurs
 - (2) The Largest Dinosaurs
 - (3) Carnivorous Dinosaurs
 - (4) The Fiercest Dinosaurs

SECTION J: Comprehension (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow. Write your answers in complete sentences.

A tiny village in Indonesia has become a magnet for pilgrims almost overnight. Tens of thousands of Indonesians are flocking to the village because they believe nine-year-old Ponari has magical powers that can cure them of any illness.

The Primary 3 pupil became known as a child witch doctor after he was said to have been struck by lightning. Ponari survived and found a stone on top of his head. The boy uses that stone in the rituals he conducts on people.

The stone is brown and is the size of a man's fist. When Ponari, a slim and short boy for his age, immerses the stone in a pail of water, many people believe the liquid becomes miracle water that can cure illnesses.

Ponari lets people pay whatever they want. Some pay as little as 1 000 rupiah, which is equivalent to 13 Singapore cents. Many poor villagers find it cheaper to turn to him rather than go to a doctor which can cost about 40 000 rupiah. Another reason why these villagers go to Ponari for a cure is that their belief in magic and superstition is very strong.

Some villagers who came to see Ponari but could not meet him were even seen scooping up water left in the bathroom after the boy had taken a bath. They believed that it could be used to cure them of their illnesses.

The number of people who throng the village to visit him daily is so great that it usually creates a stampede. During one such stampede, four people died. This is the price these villagers would pay to have the chance of being cured by the 'miracle' boy.

Although the villagers turn to superstition due to the high cost of health care, the government authorities want to end it before further damage is done.

Adapted from The Straits Times

20 March 2009

39 What ability do the villagers believe Ponari has?

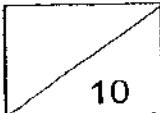

40 How big is the stone which Ponari found?

41 How much ^{would} ~~would~~ the villagers have to pay if they were to go to a doctor for treatment?

42 Why do the villagers prefer Ponari to doctors?

43 Which sentence tells you that people ^{have} ~~had~~ lost their lives in their bid to visit Ponari?
