Baxton, a reporter, disappeared mysteriously in his sleep a week ago. When he woke up, he found himself in a strange place. He wandered around for three days till he met Abixon who kindly allowed him to stay in his house.

One day while Baxton was still at Abixon's house, three strangers suddenly called on Abixon. At first Baxton thought they were detectives as they spoke to Abixon in a business-like tone. However, they turned out to be government officials in charge of planning visits to other planets like Mars and Mercury. One of them, a tall, dark man, came forward and spoke to Baxton.

"We brought you here to Popfrita because we wanted to find out about your Earth people. My colleague had been watching you closely. When he chased and questioned you, he was actually putting you to the test. We now know you are a person with the qualities we need to promote our friendship with Earthlings. We want you to accompany us to Earth so that we can be friends with your people. If you agree to help us, you will be able to return home."

Baxton was pleased. He agreed immediately. A week later, he waved goodbye to Abixon and boarded a spaceship.

Part 9: Comprehension Open- Ended (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer questions 51 to 55.

Button quails originate from India, China, Southeast Asia and Australia. They are noisy, active and hardy. They are the smallest of the quail species. They can be kept indoors or outdoors but must be sheltered from the rain if placed in the garden aviary as they cannot tolerate damp conditions.

To keep them healthy, the adults must be fed a diet of seeds, fresh greens, mealworms and crickets. Once a week, vitamin supplements must be added to their water. Also, their drinking water must be changed daily.

Unlike other birds, they have feet that are made for walking rather than perching. So, the flooring of their enclosure should not be made from wire. Wood shavings or other soft surfaces can be used to make the flooring instead. As button quails tend to be shy, they like to have places to hide within their enclosure. They are also easily startled and may fly straight up instinctively. As such, the roof of the enclosure cannot be too hard as well.

Newly-hatched button quails are called chicks. They are extremely small and require special care. To prevent their drowning in water containers, marbles should be placed in a shallow dish. The added benefit is that the chicks tend to peck at the marbles and hence, end up drinking more water.

Write your answers in complete sentences.

51. Why must button quails be sheltered from the rain?

52. What do adult button quails eat?

53. How do you feed vitamin supplements to button quails?

54. From the third paragraph, describe two features of the button quail's enclosure.

55. Which word in the last paragraph tells us that it is good for button quail chicks to drink more water?
